Regular Ford Way.

Ford Company Began On Starter In 1911.

Henry Ford tested the Ford Starting and Lighting System on his own car for one year.

Ten months ago the Ford Motor Company was not manufacturing Electric Starters; today the output of its Starter Department is greater than that of any other manufacturer of electric starting devices in the world.

Its nearest competitor makes one thousand a day, whereas the Ford Company's output is fast approaching the three thousand mark, two thousand eight hundred and eighty one already having been manufactured in one day.

The Ford starter—and generator, for it is really two separate units—is not the result of a new idea or of a sudden decision. More than eight years ago Mr. Henry Ford's vision saw the need, and his electrical engineers were instructed to begin experimenting.

After seven years of constant research, which took into consideration the many different climates in which the Ford car is used, together with the factors of size and weight and adaptability to quantity production, twenty-three trial jobs were built. These were tested in many different ways. Mr. Ford himself used one on his car for a year. Still the engineers continued their experiments and improvements.

Then came the order from the Government for 15,000 three-ton tanks, each one of which was to be equipped with two synchronized Ford Motors. A starter was essential, so the one now being installed on Ford cars was evolved. But, only one starter and generator was used to turn over the two Ford motors in each tank.

January first 1919 the Ford Motor Company began equipping enclosed cars with this new starting and lighting system. Ford engineers say that although the entire system—Starter and Generator—weighs only thirty-one pounds, it produces a higher torque output (constant rotary motion) pound for pound, than any other system on the market.

When the department for building the Starting and Lighting Systems first began production, fifty hours labor was charged to each unit, but now that machinery and equipment have been installed, the time per unit is four hours. Two huge armature impregnating ovens have been installed, each with a capacity of 1700 every eight hours. In these ovens the armatures are dried, soaked in varnish and dried again. Eight hours time is required for this operation.

The power from the starter to the motor is applied through the well known Bendix drive, which automatically engages the starter and then, once the motor is started, the starter immediately disengages. It is equipped with oilless bearings and needs practically no attention.

Within another thirty days or six weeks, the Ford Company expects to be making enough starters so that every Ford car will be equipped with the new Electric Starting and Lighting System.

COULD HARDLY STAND ALONE

Terrible Suffering From Headache, Sideache, Backache, and Weakness, Relieved by Cardul, Says This Texas Lady.

Gonzales, Tex.—Mrs. Minnie Phillips, of this place, writes: "Five years ago I was taken with a pain in my left side. It was right under my left rib. It would commence with an aching and extend up into my left shoulder and on down into my back. By that time the pain would be so severe I would have to take to bed, and suffered usually about three days. I suffered this way for three years, and got to be a mere skeleton and was so weak I could hardly stand alone. Was not able to go anywhere and had to let my house work go...I suffered awful with a pain in my back and had the headache all the time. I just was a misery, my stomach got in an awful condition, caused from taking so much medicine. I suffered so much pain. I had just about given up all hopes of our getting anything to help me.

One day a Birthday Almanac was thrown in my yard. After reading its testimonials I decided to try Cardul, and am so thankful that I did, for I began to improve when on the second bottle...I am now a well woman and feeling fine and the cure has been permanent for it has been two years since my awful bad health. I will always praise and recommend Cardul." Try Cardul today. B 78

Gulfport, Miss.

Mississippi is a land of romance and interesting history, and she has furnished some famous men who have had spectacular careers.

Mississippi was found by old world explorers to have a fine climate and many fascinations. Two centuries ago DeSoto, Joliet, Marquette, Iberville, Bienville and LaSalle had a "vision" of the civilization of Mississippi of today.

At Gulfport is a railway pier extending one mile into the Mississippi Sound. It gives dockage facilities to foreign vessels and makes the harbor a gateway to the interior of the state, and south to the Panama Canal region. Gulfport is famed for its accessibility from and to all points north, south, east and west.

The city of Gulfport has attractive homes, fine churches and schools, and an aggressive wide-awake people. She has also about her fruit lands and garden spots for the settler from the north. She has a fine up-to-date hostelry. Gulfport is on the beautiful Shell road also, that extends for miles along the edge of the Sound. It is a fine breeze one gets at most any day of the year, when abroad that electric line that runs along the very waters edge. The golf links, a few miles east of Gulfport are an attraction on this line; also the Military Academy and beautiful Beauvoir, that was once the home of Jefferson Davis, and which is now a harbor for the Confederate Veterans of the South.

If, while sojourning at Gulfport, one is weary of golfing or boating, why then in the moonlit nights or dark nights one can go searching for "flounders" — when the tide is out. It is a picturesque sight to see men and women, who live along the shore who often at night are thus engaged. By the aid of their torches they enjoy this sport. No doubt many find it an economic pastime.

Gulfport is a coming city of some size! Strangers are cordially welcome either to visit for a time or to add their interest to that of many others who come for the attractions and well-being she offers to all who may wish to share them with her. —Carlyl Porter.

As Others See Us.

A revenue man, who is an expert in tobacco statistics, told the writer a few days ago that in his opinion Garrard County's output of tobacco this year would be 10,000,000 pounds and that it would bring into the wealth of that county $6,000,000.

Garrard county certainly will be rolling in wealth at the end of the present selling season.—Danville Advocate.

Wanted—Red-

Blooded Men!

Happy and Successful People Everywhere Are Always In Great Demand.

Best Friends—Red Blooded

Pepto-Mangan Produces Better Blood — Sold in Liquid and Tablet Form.

Get into the red-blooded class if you are not there now. Take a few weeks' course of that splendid tonic — Pepto-Mangan and note how you improve in health and looks. Pepto-Mangan is a red-blood maker and is for sale at the drug store right near your home. It is put up in both liquid and tablet form. Take which you choose, but see that the name "Gude" is on the package. Without "Gude" it is not Pepto-Mangan.

It is the cry everywhere—"Wanted — Red-Blooded Men." The soldiers and sailors that won the war were red-blooded, two-fisted fellows. In business it is the red-blooded man that stands the strain and wins the big successes. The world has no place for the thin-blooded weakling. It is natural, too, that red-blooded men and women should have more friends, and they do. They are better human beings than the thin-blooded anemics, who are likely to be "grouchy" and irritable most of the time.

AGED RESIDENT SAYS BENEFITS TOTALLED $1000.

Relief Trutono Gave Worth that Much to Her, Mrs. Benner
Declares.

Louisville, Ky., Dec. 10.—"For six dollar I've paid out for Trutono I feel that I've received $1000 worth of benefits," Mrs. C. Benner, 1124 Bardstown Road, said recently. Mrs. Benner, who is 52 years old, has long been a resident of Louisville, having been born here, and she is well known in this city and vicinity.

"I'll admit that I didn't have much faith in Trutono at first but it soon proved to be the medicine for my ailments," Mrs. Benner said. "I used to suffer severe bronchitis. Now she knows the Trutono Gave I expect to live a long time. Some times they would attack me every day in town. I'd have a hard time getting home. My appetite can't be perfect, certainly any kind of food that would tempt me. My liver has been out of order for the past two years."

"After I had taken three bottles of Trutono I realized it was helping me and now with the fourth bottle I feel, the bilious attacks have ceased to occur. I haven't had a spell for the past week. My kidneys are in better shape too. I can heartily recommend Trutono to those who are suffering as I did."

Trutono is especially beneficial for bronchial, liver and bowel troubles, catarrhal complaints, nervousness, sleeplessness, loss of appetite and the like and as equally as efficient as a reconstructive agency for overcoming after effects of pneumonia, influenza, deep colds and the like.

Trutono, the perfect tonic, is now being introduced and explained in Lancaster, at R. E. McRoberts Drug Store.

Christmas Eve on Paint Rock

By C. M. MORRISON.

Funny what an idea will do in a bunch of folks! Take down in the Paint Rock neighborhood as an illustration. It is, or used to be, backwoods all right, but you can hardly call it that any more. Anyway, it is about "two whoops and a holler" over the ridge. Another name the natives had for it around here was "Happy Hollow," so called mostly because it looked like it was anything but happy.

Mostly log houses over there, and it's a solemn fact that a good many of them had stick and clay chimneys and were daubed with plain yellow mud. Half grown youngsters there went barefoot right through corn gathering and up till hog killing time. Old Paint Rock was always a pretty good market for "blockade whisky," and it was even whispered around that they made a pretty good article of "white mule" in the neighborhood somewhere.

It isn't much wonder that the "war drives" paid mighty little attention to these folks and yet they were as good Americans as you ever saw. None of that dodging the draft stuff went with them. They went and they went with a whoop. But their attitude seemed to be that while they would take care of the fighting somebody also would have to raise the money.

Most of them were good workers, too, but they had mighty little. They saved next to nothing. "Thrift" was a word that you didn't hear in the Paint Rock country down "Happy Hollow" way.
They worked over here on this side on the farms, but they simply never had $50 at a time. And they weren't used to the installment plan of doing business.
When the Paint Rock man had finished a day's work it was a case of "pay me now" with him when sun down came.

Just how the War Savings Stamps idea ever got into Happy Hollow" is a mystery. Doubtless the first citizen who got it took it as curiosity. It must have been at that. It wasn't exactly money, you know. More of a sort of a promise to pay, you see. But somehow the idea of getting together four dollars and some odd cents and loaning it to the government away off yonder at Washington, made a hit.

It undeniably did. The promise of Uncle Sam to pay $5 in cash on a given date sort of fascinated the Paint Rockers. You see, all their lives they had been owing the other fellow or the government or somebody money, and this other-way-around thing pleased and interested them. They began reading the circulars about the War Savings Stamps and pestering the nearest postmaster about them. Before they knew it they had been formed into a War Savings Society.

First thing you knew a Paint Rocker's social standing was being determined by the number of "Baby Bonds" that he had or was thought to have.
That Savings Society is still doing business and gathering in a new member now and then. Folks over there like to stack another stamp on top of the ones they already have. A few of them are even beginning to eye the "Certificates" now and again.

Christmas had always been pretty hectic and rollosome time over in the "hollow." But the last time, instead of gathering into a band that wandered out of the valley to disturb other folks on Christmas Eve, Paint Rock had a funny kind of a Christmas Eve celebration. It was a Christmas tree with a W. S. S. chapter to it. They held it in the little old school house that stands on the hill above the creek.

The dragged a big tree out of the woods and down one hill and up another and set it up. Of course all the presents that they hung on the tree were not "Baby Bonds," but you would have been surprised if you had kept tab, to see how many of them were.

It would have been a little out of the ordinary anywhere, but over on Paint Rock that kind of a Christmas tree was little short of revolutionary to folks who remembered the "rain," tar-rin' old-time Christmas that the "Happy Hollow" folks had always celebrated.

It was the accepted thing to make somebody else in the family a present of a War Savings Stamp. And the big boots and the weather beaten hands of the old-time Paint Rockers made the rafters ring when some youngsters came marching up the aisle in response to his name and went back red faced and pleased looking with one on the government's promise to pay.

It looked like everybody understood that every "bond" that had been bought and given away was adding to the sum total of the wealth and respectability of a little community that had never gone in very strong for saving of any kind—no matter whether it was "daylight," soap, grease or what not.

It has all had the effect of making the Paint Rock folks understand what the government means to them and what they mean to the government.
They feel like they are a part of the machinery of the nation now, and that they have a real interest in it, outside of paying taxes and voting when election day comes around. And you can't fool with thrift in one way without it gettin' a hold on you in other ways.
Anyway, "Happy Hollow" is more prosperous now than ever before and it is getting more so right along.

FOR SUCCESS IN WINTERING BEES

Some of Best Apriarists Place Honey Gatherers in Cellars or Special Repositories.

ALL HIVES ARE PROTECTED

Provide Abundance of Stores of Good Quality and Shelter From Wind and Cold—Of Great Importance to Have Good Queen.

Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture

Hives in the more northern parts of the United States for many years have been placed by some of the best bee-keepers in cellars or special repositories during the coldest parts of the winter. There has been a growing feeling, however, that if outdoor wintering is practicable, in most cases it gives better results, and there has been a decided change from cellar wintering to outdoor wintering within the past decade. The difficulty seems to be that the methods of cellar wintering practiced have not been satisfactory and it seems probable that if as much attention had been given to the perfection of the methods of cellar wintering as has been given to an improvement of the methods of outdoor wintering, there would not have been as great a change to the outdoor methods as has taken place.

The placing of bees in a cellar is only another way of putting insulation about the hives, the only difference being that in the cellar all of the hives are protected alike and the protection is placed about the apiary instead of around hives in groups or singly. It follows that the principles which apply to successful outdoor wintering apply equally to the protection of the bees in the cellar.

Essentials to Success.

As in the case of outdoor wintering, the essentials to success in caring for a normal colony of bees from the end of one season's honey flow to the beginning of the next lie in providing three things in abundance: (1) Stores of good quality, (2) protection from wind and cold, and (3) room for the rearing of brood at appropriate times. These factors must not be lacking at the right times, and if any one is omitted it may prevent the bees from gathering the crop of the following season. These three factors do not apply equally throughout the period of relative inactivity, but as certainly as anyone of them is decreased, just so certainly will next year's crop be reduced.

In practicing cellar wintering it is unnecessary to leave so much honey with the bees during the time that they are in the cellar, and it is not necessary during that period to leave room for the rearing of brood. During the coldest part of the winter the bees need especially protection from cold and wind, although enough good stores must be in the hive to keep them through that period in good condition. Probably a large part of the failure of beekeepers in practicing cellar wintering comes from the fact that before and after the bees are in the cellar the important factors of stores and breeding room have not been adequately supplied. Before the bees are put into the cellar they must have room for breeding and stores in abundance, and after they are taken out these two factors must be present in greatly increased abundance.

Necessity of Strong Colonies.

As in the case of wintering outdoors, it is wasteful to attempt to winter weak colonies. It is difficult to set standards of colony strength at this season, but it is unwise to attempt to winter colonies that are not strong enough to have brood sufficient to fill three or four Langstroth frames two months before the first killing frost. If the colonies in the apiary are not of the proper strength, it is wise to unite until the proper strength is reached.

It is of the greatest importance that every colony have a good queen in order that brood rearing may continue in the fall and may then again proceed rapidly in the spring. Usually it is best to requeen at least every two years, but if good wintering is practiced the colonies will come out of winter quarters so strong and will build up so rapidly in the spring that the queens will soon wear out, making it safer to requeen every year. To get the best results from requeening, all young queens should be introduced so that they begin to lay about two months before the first killing frost.

Meaning of "Selah."

The word Selah, which occurs so frequently in the Psalms, is usually believed to be a direction to the musicians who chanted the "Tehillim" in the temple. Mettheson, the great musical critic, wrote a book on the subject, in which, after rejecting a number of theories, he came to the conclusion that it is equivalent to the modern "da capo," and is a direction that the air or song is to be repeated from the commencement to the part where the word is placed.

Importance of Good Health.

Good health is to be sure, does not sum up the whole secret of personality. But it is a most important element, as you will presently appreciate when you adopt rules of living that result in a perfect bettering of your health. You will begin to feed more satisfactorily. You will attack business or music more masterfully. You will find it far easier to sway others by your personal influence.—H. Aldrich, in Chicago News.

"Baby Bonds" and "Baby Beef"

By C. M. MORRISON.

It appears that the "Baby Bond" and "Baby Beef" idea got tangled up in the boyish brain of Bobby Young, at or about the same time. "Bob" was, officially, Robert Young, Jr. But his old man considered that he himself was the author of the classic phrase: "I can take one mule and one nigger and show you more about farmin' on one 40 acres than all these hook-fam' feller can show you on a hull quarter section."

Well, what are you going to do about it, when you have a father who is no thicker than that back of the ears, and who is just that narrow between the eyes? It looks like there wasn't much room for argument, don't it?

Bob wasn't much of a youngster to argue, anyway. He had got hold of the pure-bred beef idea and then the "Baby Beef" scheme got planted in his gray matter. He had it all figured out that if he could get hold of the right kind of stock he could feed some young beef steers that would be just about the slickest things that ever stepped on a feedlot scale. But to get the right kind of steers and to hold and have them in his own name and here, so to speak—well, that was a different kind of an animal.

The W. S. S. campaigns hadn't got much more than well started till Bob was all interest. Savings accounts meant nothing in his young life and the only bank he had any dealings with was an old tin box that he kept his savings in and well hidden under a loose board in the attic. The words "Baby Bond" as applied to the War Savings Stamp of the Five-Dollar denomination kept ringing in his mind and he began to connect them up with his pet project about "Baby Beef."

Now with enough "Baby Bonds" it would be possible, after a while, to turn in and buy the raw material for his "Baby Beef" feeding project. It might take a year or two, though, and a year or two seemed a mighty long time to a youngster who was still wrestling with cube root and mensuration in the country school house, while he felt like he ought to be studying feeding tables and mastering the Babcock tester.

The thing to do was to make a start. Out of its dark hiding place under the oaken dooring of the old farm house came Bob's tin box. The next time the mail carrier came around he was somewhat surprised to see a freckled lad rise up out of the fence corner at the turn of the road and order three of the "Baby Bonds."

Bob was making his start. Somehow it seemed a lot easier to save money when you had something plainly before you that you wanted to do. Then, too, it looked like chances to make money, enough to go a good way toward buying another "Baby Bond," kept turning up.

The walnut trees seemed to understand that it was necessary for a boy to make a little more money than usual that fall, for the trees were laden and walnuts were never higher in price. Minks, muskrats and skunks were not inclined to walk obligingly into traps, but a good many of them got tangled up on the steel jaws of Victor and Newhouse before the trapping season was many weeks old.

With one thing and another the youngster who had set out to collect himself some "Baby Bonds" and some "Baby Beef" found himself in possession of about fourteen or fifteen of the "Bonds" by December 15. It had been a hard struggle and took a good deal of self denial, but there the W. S. S. were, all tucked away in the old tin box.

A day or so later, his mother's brother, red-faced, brownhaired citizen of Wyoming, made the pilgrimage "back home." He had been growing Shorthorn beef out on the ranges and he loved, above all things, to talk beef, particularly Shorthorn beef. In Bob he found a kindred soul. He soon gave up Bob's father as a sort of a boopee case, but he and the boy put in a lot of time together. It wasn't long, of course, until he had got at the whole story of the "babies," the "bonds" and the "beef."

"I'll tell you, Bob," he said as they lay by the kitchen fireplace on Christmas Eve. "This bond and beef scheme you've got in your head is mighty nigh to all right. It will be slow pickling for you. But you keep hammering along now. My Christmas present to you this year, one of these, anyway, is going to be a promise."

"You keep going with this plan of yours and I'll back you in the beef end of the business. For every dollar that you will stick into the little 'bonds' by next Christmas I'll put up two dollars. I've a hunch that you will have about enough by that time to make a start on the beef end of your little old scheme."

"You little old green rascals!" Bob addressed his "Baby Bonds" that night when he turned in, "looka like you've just about made good on your part of the job already. What's a year, anyway? I'll bet I have the slickest little old bunch of forced fed steers one of these days you ever saw."

THE RESULT

By MILDRED WHITE.

"She doesn't think I'm worth a pleasant word," Richard bewailed, "and I love her to distraction."

Fan's elder sister smiled.

"Fan usually appreciates what others prize," she suggested meaningly.

"You think," the lover asked, "that I ought to go about flirting with other girls in order to win Fan's favor? Well—I can't. Besides the other girls might not be so impressionable."

"Charming modesty," Eleanor laughed, but she realized the truth of the statement.

"It is strange," she said, "how all men young and old, flock about my little Fan. Of course, she is the dearest girl in the world, but she treats them all so mockingly, one would think they'd resent it. Her young heart has not yet been awakened, Dicky, and you have as good a chance as any. I have told you—Fan always desires the unobtainable. If you could make her just a bit jealous—"

"Of whom?" the man asked brusquely.

Eleanor considered.

Girls were inexplicable creatures. Far be it from herself to bring upon this earnest friend the reproach of a broken heart. Richard broke the silence.

"I know," he said, "great idea, if you will coincide. You shall be the object of my apparent adoration, Nell; I'll make love to you under Fan's saucy nose, and if she should become jealous we will take it for a sign."

"Me!" Eleanor gasped. "Oh! she wouldn't be jealous of me, Dicky. I'm too old, older even than you."

"By a few months," the man answered calmly, "and not observable to the other's eyes. You are safest, Nell. When the game is over you can return to—your knitting."

Eleanor gazed down at the colored wool in her hands. Something in the careless remark saddened her. Always, it seemed, that had been her lot. After the game was over—she returned to her knitting. At Fan's age she had been as gay and popular as she, but the merry game had not lasted long, for the arms of her small orphaned sister had reached out to her demanding loving protection. And Eleanor had not failed in the giving.

She wondered now wistfully, if Fan might not laugh at the very thought of herself as a rival.

"You cannot object if you would," Richard said, "I am determined to be your adoring slave. A certain red-gold bead appears on the horizon. Kindly unwind this wool from my trembling fingers."

Eleanor laughed. Dicky had posed ridiculously at her feet with the crimson wool stretched between his hands.

Obviously she began to unwind, as he watched her. The intentness of his gaze brought a flush to Eleanor's cheek; it was an amusing game, the elder sister desperately restraining a girlish giggle as Fan came suddenly upon them.

"I want," Fan began promptly, "to go to my boat; please, get it for me, Dicky."

"Can't," Richard absently murmured. "Have to help Nell with this wool; afterward she's going to show me the view from the ridge."

The young girl's eyes widened.

"You mean," she asked, "that you don't want to go with me?"

"Not exactly that," Richard replied apologetically. He was evidently embarrassed; "Nell asked me first, you see—"

"Oh! all right," Fan answered airily.

"Bobby will be glad to take me."

She was humming a tune as she left them, but the glance she threw at her sister was inquiring. Eleanor seemed happily oblivious.

Throughout days which followed, the elder sister often found that inquiring glance bent upon her. Richard persistently played his part. He formed a habit of reading aloud to Eleanor afternoons in a nook on the shore, plainly discernible from the bathing spot which Fan and her sisters frequented.

The game grew in interest and excitement. When the younger sister was absent they discussed in secret enjoyment her faulded symptoms of jealousy. Then one day Eleanor came to meet Richard vaguely troubled.

"Fan is with that Huldy person all the time," she said. "I thought at first that she was trying merely to pay you back in your own coin. But Huldy's a winsome lad. You'd better go back to her, Dicky, before it is too late."

So Richard went to take up his old allegiance. Fan proved strangely disappointing. He had never before realized her lack of appreciation for literature. He and Nell had so enjoyed those old books together, and Fan was frankly disinterested in his work. Nell had grasped with wonderful intuition the details of his business. Swimming and motoring were all right in their way, but one could not drag about in that sort of foolishness forever. He reflected; so for comfort Richard went back to the elder sister.

"I'm sorry for you Dicky, so sorry!"

Nell began sympathetically. "Fan is actually engaged to Bobby."

"Thank goodness!" Richard was startled to hear himself exclaim. He paused. A red golden head showed in a doorway.

"I knew that you and Eleanor were meant for each other," triumphed the owner of the head. "But you were both so dreadfully slow—in finding it out." (Copyright, 1919, by the Western News paper Union.)

TREATMENT FOR WANING ALFALFA

Old Field Cannot Be Revived By Reseeding After Cultivating in Autumn.

SEED IS WASTED ANNUALLY

Best Plan, Where Soil Is Beginning to Show Ravages of Wear, to Plow
Up and Grow Some Cultivated Crop, Such as Corn.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

It is practically impossible to try to make an old alfalfa field look like new by attempting to sow more seed after diskling or cultivating in the fall. Thousands of dollars' worth of seed are wasted in unsuccessful attempts to revive the waning stand of alfalfa. Specialists recommend that fields on the decline should be plowed up and resowed.

Even though the seed germinates successfully, the plants mature at periods different from those of the old plants, while ordinarily the young plants are smothered out before they make much growth. Even where an alfalfa field is patchy and covered with practically bare spots, it is not advisable to attempt to resow except by breaking up the entire field and again sowing down with alfalfa.

Not Profitable to Cultivate.

It is always objectionable, according to the specialists, to cultivate or disk an alfalfa field irrespective of its age and condition, an carefully conducted experiments have shown that the only section in which it was profitable to cultivate the alfalfa crop in any way was in the irrigated belt of the far West.

Usually unfavorable results attend where alfalfa is disked under eastern conditions, although in the case of alfalfa fields which have been badly in-ested with weeds, it has been the practice of many growers to disk after the alfalfa has been cut, with the disks set nearly straight.

Plow Up Alfalfa Soil.

The best plan, where the alfalfa soil is beginning to show the ravages of wear, is to plow up the field and devote it to some cultivated crop, such as corn, for one or two years, and then to resow it to alfalfa after preparing a proper seed bed, liming the soil if necessary, properly inoculating the soil or seed, and sowing the seed early enough in the fall so that the crop will establish a vigorous root system and produce sufficient growth to weather the winter successfully.

FATTENING FEED FOR STEERS

Experimental Stations Recommend Corn Silage and Concentrates as Best for Cattle.

Corn silage and concentrates are highly recommended as fattening feed for steers. Experimental stations report that silage and oil meal or cottonseed meal invariably prove to be cheaper than corn or even than hay or corn with concentrates or silage and hay by themselves.

It is admitted that a steer cannot be finished for best property and to the best advantage on an all-silage diet. But the most polished steer on the market is not always the most profitable one. High priced feed may outcost the high priced carcass.

TEST OF CORN IN NEBRASKA

Loss of Nine Bushels Per Acre From Specially Choice Seed From Other States.

At the Nebraska Agricultural College seed grown on the farm was planted beside seed grown within sixty miles of the college, and beside prize winning corn from Illinois, Indiana and Ohio. Seed grown on the farm produced 48.8 bushels an acre; seed grown within sixty miles of the farm produced 45.6 bushels an acre, and the specially choice seed from other states produced 39.8 bushels an acre, a loss of nine bushels an acre by sending out of the state for seed.

CAMELS are in a class by themselves—easily the most refreshing, the most likable cigarette you ever smoked. You can prove that! Simply compare Camels puff-by-puff with any cigarette in the world at any price! Put quality, flavor and cigarette satisfaction to the utmost test!

Made to meet your taste, Camels never tire it, no matter how liberally you smoke them! The expert blend of choice Turkish and choice Domestic tobaccos makes Camels delightful—so full-bodied, yet so fascinatingly smooth and mellow-mild. Every time you light one you get new and keener enjoyment!

Freedom from any unpleasant cigarette after taste or any unpleasant cigarette odor makes Camels as unusual as they are enjoyable.

In fact, Camels appeal to the most fastidious smoker in so many new ways you never will miss the absence of coupons, premiums or gifts. You'll prefer Camel Quality!

Keep Tacks in Jars.
Save all small glass jars. One good use for them is to keep tacks, screws and small nails in. It will save time when looking for a particular kind.

The reservoir of a new German pen holds as much ink as an ordinary small bottle of ink, and is shaped to fit the hand comfortably.

To Tell Age of Fish.
Year rings on the scales of fish are used in Norway and France to determine the age of sardines, whether they have reached their full growth and when they will spawn.

"Good Night" Is Too Long.
The countryman's "How now?" or "How he?" is outclassed by the London printing trade's "Good" or "Good, tierce"—omitting the "night" and the "morning."—London Chronicle.

"Kitchen Middens."
Kitchen middens are great mounds, some 100 feet long and 250 feet wide, found in Denmark, England, Scotland, France and in parts of Europe, North and South America and Australia. They are supposed to be the refuse heaps of prehistoric periods, and are composed chiefly of oyster, periwinkle, cockle and mussel shells. In them are found implements of wood, stone, bones of animals and cinders.

These Balance Men.
I profess no special partiality for any critic, who, holding balance in hand, weighs eagerly whatsoever of learning comes to his counter. I question whether he is not taking less of the quality of the wares, than of the fashion of his scales, never questioning their accuracy nor his own levity. Still it must be admitted that these balance men are not without their usefulness, being convenient for appraising market values.—A. Bronson Alcott.

Ancient Honduran City.
Copan is an ancient ruined city of northwestern Honduras, on the Copan river. The remains are of unknown antiquity and very extensive, stretching for about two miles along the river. The buildings are of stone, embracing a temple over 600 feet long, with many sculptured figures. The Copan ruins take their name from a modern town to the east of them. This was an Indian town, and was taken after a fierce struggle by the Spaniards under Alfonso de Alvarado in 1528.

Don't Prod Your Liver to Action

NR Overcomes Biliousness, Constipation, Sick Headache, Quickly. No Gripping or Pain. Guaranteed.

The organs of digestion, assimilation and elimination—stomach, liver and bowels—are closely allied, and the proper action of any of these organs is largely dependent upon the correct functioning of all the others. "Whipping" your liver into action with enemas or force-feeding with irritating laxatives or strong cathartics is a great mistake. A better, safer plan is strengthening and toning the whole digestive and eliminative system with Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets), which not only brings immediate relief, but genuine and lasting benefit. It acts on the stomach, liver, bowels and kidneys. Improves digestion and assimilation, overcomes biliousness, etc. It helps griping and quickly relieves sick headache.

Get your system thoroughly cleaned and purified for once; stomach, liver and bowels working together in vigorous harmony and you will have to take medicine every day—just take one NR Tablet occasionally to keep your system in good condition and always feel your best. Remember it is easier and cheaper to keep well than it is to get well.

Get a box and try it with the understanding that it must give you greater relief and benefit than any bowel or liver medicine you ever used or no pay. Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) is sold, guaranteed and recommended by your druggist.

FENNER'S WAREHOUSE

WALNUT STREET.

DANVILLE, KY.

We wish to announce to the Tobacco Growers adjacent to the Danville Tobacco Market that we will open our Warehouse for the sale of Tobacco on

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 3

We will receive Tobacco on and after, Monday, November 17.

It gives us great pleasure to inform you that Tobacco in North Carolina and all Eastern Markets is much higher this season than ever before and we see no reason why the Kentucky Tobacco should not sell at High Prices. With the outlook of Prices being high, it is more necessary than ever that you be very careful in selecting a market to sell your Tobacco on where there is strong competition and assurance of getting the highest market price at all times. This we guarantee to do. We have one of the strongest corps of buyers in the state—all of the big companies are represented on our market, buying direct, thereby eliminating the middle man.

In order to care for the ever-growing market there has been erected in Danville a large and up-to-date Redrying Steam Plant, which will be worth a great deal to the farmers who sell their Tobacco on the Danville Market. These people will be big buyers on all grades of Tobacco, thereby creating new competition.

In order to avoid the congestion in the handling of Tobacco, which prevailed last season, we have built a big annex to our present Warehouse, which enables us to handle and sell your Tobacco to a much better advantage than ever before.

Our Mr. Ralph Pitt, who has had twenty-six years of actual experience in the operation of Tobacco Warehouses is in a class to himself and if you will bring your first load to us he will thoroughly demonstrate to you that it will be money in your pocket to sell your tobacco with us.

We wish to announce that Mr. Holland, better known as "Dock" will be our Auctioneer again this season, also J. Lee Murphy who has been connected with the Danville Tobacco Market for the past ten years will be associated with us this season and will be glad to serve his many friends at FENNER'S WAREHOUSE. Thanking you in advance and trusting you will visit our opening sale on DECEMBER 3rd,

We are Yours Very Truly,

Fenner's Warehouse
